DETAILED ACTION

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Havener (US 3,341,909). The Havener clamp includes a base 20-26, a means 61 for connecting a leash to the base, and a threaded bolt (“pressing mechanism”) by which the clamp could be affixed to a doorjamb. A ring of a chain 65 is shown attached to a ring hook 64 associated with a first side of the clamp base.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 6-8, 10-12, 14, 15, 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Havener in view of Aubert (US 2,042,086). The Havener clamp lacks a base pad and a press platform. However, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to employ a base pad and press platform with the first side and bolt of Havener, in view of the patent to Aubert (see elements 23 of Aubert) that a base pad and press platform permit the clamp to more securely grasp an article it is being used to hold. As to claims 8, 11, 14, use of a ring with the bolt of the combination clamp would have been obvious to one skilled in the art wishing to convert the bolt into an additional attachment point.

Claim 18 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Flora et al. (US 5,711,397). The Flora et al. patent discloses a clamp device including a first side 46, a second side 48, a third side 40, and a ring 86. Elements 50, 100 permit sides 46, 48 to be adjusted relative to one another along third side 40. The preamble has not been given weight inasmuch as the Flora et al. device is capable of being attached to a door.

Claim 19 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Flora et al. Although shims are not disclosed as being used in conjunction with sides 46, 48 of Flora et al., use of such elements would have been obvious to one skilled in the art wishing to permit the device to be attached to beams or other articles having widths smaller than the minimum distance to which the sides 46, 48 can be moved.

Claims 9, 13, 16 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because in line 2, "is disclosed" should be deleted. Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: On page 8, line 22, "snuggly" should be corrected to -snugly-.

Appropriate correction is required.

The patents to Johnson (US 2,243,468), Nadelson (US 2,470,318), and Krietzman et al. (US 5,829,391) have been cited to provide additional examples of clamping devices.
